Dear Friends,

I hope you have had a wonderful start to the new year.

Last year, the outbreak of COVID-19, changed the world as we know it. At the top of our minds has been the additional strain we see COVID-19 putting on the already fragile health system in Papua New Guinea. COVID-19 has asked the best from us, and challenged how we responded to our neighbours' needs. 2020 saw ADI continuing to work with rural communities and frontline health workers with clinical services, along with provisions of medical equipment, PPE, and a combination of in-person and online public health and specialist health trainings. We also partnered with another local Northern Beach charity, Waves For Water Australia (W4W) to distribute portable water filters to remote communities and health clinics – many of which operate without clean running water. Our fight to improve health security will continue in 2021.

That's why on Saturday 27th February ADI and W4W will be hosting a joint fundraising event at the iconic Q Station in Manly. The evening sunset session will be a celebration of the organisations' work to date, with introductory speeches from W4W Country Director, Melanie Koeman, and ADI Founder, Dr Peter Macdonald. Guests will also hear from health workers who have worked on the frontline in remote PNG in the fitting context of the history of Q Station. The event will feature live music, a DJ, canapes and drinks, a raffle, a silent auction and live auction. We are grateful for the generosity of local businesses during these challenging times, with impressive prizes to win such as weekend getaways, stunning art works, dining vouchers, surf lessons and gear, a signed 2020 Sea Eagles jersey, and more, all valued over $12,000.
